The University of Maryland, Department of Counseling, Higher Education, and Special Education seeks to fill a position at the tenured rank of associate or full professor in its School Psychology Program to begin August 2014. Within a year of arrival the individual will be expected to assume the role of director of the School Psychology Program.

The Department is seeking an individual who will contribute to its long tradition of scholarly research and national leadership. The Department offers undergraduate, master’s and doctoral degrees in three broad areas: 1) Higher Education, Student Affairs, and International Education policy; 2) Special Education; and, 3) Counseling Psychology, School Psychology, and Counselor Education. The Department’s programs consistently have received high national rankings, including the U.S. News top rank in the counseling specialty. More information on the Department and College of Education can be found at www.education.umd.edu/chse.

We seek candidates who have a focused program of research but who can contribute to teaching and research in school psychology and related areas. Position responsibilities include assuming the role of program director within a year of arrival, conducting an on-going program of focused research, seeking and securing external funding, teaching graduate courses, providing practicum supervision, and supervising master’s theses and doctoral dissertations. The candidate’s research and professional interest areas are open. Commitment and ability to prepare students to work with individuals of diverse cultural backgrounds and personal characteristics are essential.

Qualifications:

- Ph.D. in School Psychology (required); graduate of an APA-accredited program (preferred).
- Demonstrated record of focused research, appropriate for rank (required).
- Potential for (required), or demonstrated record of (preferred), securing external funding, appropriate for rank.
- Training and professional experiences appropriate to teach applied courses in the school psychology program (required); eligibility for licensure as a psychologist in Maryland (strongly preferred).
- Research and professional interests that allow for contributions to other specialties in the Program area in which the School Psychology Program is embedded, specifically Counseling Psychology or School Counseling (preferred).
- Record of high quality teaching and service commensurate with tenure in the Department (required).

Candidates should upload: (a) a letter of application addressing the qualifications and expectations noted above, (b) a current curriculum vitae, and (c) names, addresses, and telephone numbers of three persons from whom letters of reference may be requested. Requests for confidentiality until the interview phase of the search will be honored.

For best consideration, please submit all application materials by November 8, 2013. Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled.
