INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS DEALING WITH EDUCATION AND COMPARATIVE EDUCATION

UNESCO

Paris, France

A specialized agency of the United Nations. It conducts research on and implements policies on all aspects of education and development (literacy programs, science education and society, educational expansion and democratization, equality in education, raising educational standards, etc.) Emphasis is on practical, result-oriented projects. UNESCO relies on a vast network of offices and institutions, as well as intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations, to carry out its programs.

The UNESCO Education Program Areas comprises several divisions: Structures, Content, Methods and Techniques of Education; Educational policy and Planning; Science, Technical, and Vocational Education; Financing of Education; Higher Education and Training of Educational Personnel; Equality of Educational Opportunity and Special Programs, Literacy, Adult Education and Rural Development; Operational Programs.

Publications: UNESCO Courier, International Social Science Journal, Prospects, Impact of Science on Society, International Social Science Journal.

Affiliated to UNESCO but functioning in different sites are the International Institute of Educational Planning (Paris), the International Bureau of Education (Geneva), the European Centre for Higher Education (Bucharest), and the Institute for Lifelong Learning (Hamburg), and the UNESCO Institute for Statistics (Montreal). They are described below:

International Institute of Educational Planning (IIEP)

Paris, France

Established by UNESCO in 1963 to serve as a world center for advanced training and research in educational planning. Its purpose is to help all member states of UNESCO in their social and economic development efforts by enlarging the fund of knowledge about educational planning and the supply of competent experts in this field. Its activities include: training educational specialists, conducting intensive programs on specific themes for visiting fellows, organizing seminars and conferences, and conducting research on educational and development issues.

International Bureau of Education (IBE)

Geneva, Switzerland

Funded in 1929, it was incorporated into UNESCO in 1969. Its purpose is to contribute to peace and security by promoting collaboration among the nations through education, science, and culture. Its activities include: organizing sessions of the International Conference on Education, undertaking and publishing studies on comparative education, and maintaining and international education library.

Publications: IBE Working Papers, Studies in Comparative Education, Educational Practices.

UNESCO Institute for Statistics (UIE)

Montreal, Canada

Collects, analyzes, and disseminates educational data from educational systems in all countries. Monitors progress in Education for All and the Millennium Development Goals.

Publication: Global Education Digest (annual).

Centre for Educational Research and Innovation (CERI)

Paris, France

A semi-autonomous agency within the framework of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD). Its aims are to promote development of research in education, to encourage experiments in educational innovation, and to stimulate cooperation between member countries in research and development work on educational problems. Projects deal with education and new technologies, education for multicultural societies, the educational implications of changing work patterns, integration of handicapped young people into education and work, and adult higher education.

It conducts the PISA cross-national assessments.

UNICEF

New York, USA

Its purpose is to help developing countries meet some of the immediate needs of their young and to help them strengthen their long-range services for children as essential parts of their overall development efforts. Its activities emphasize health-related programs, but also educational programs such as supervision of curriculum reform, better preparation of teachers and the introduction of practical training to prepare young people for work, as well as training for personnel within development countries at all levels of work. Interested in girls' and women's education.

Publication: The State of the World's Children (annual).

International Council on Adult Education

Toronto, Canada

An international non-governmental organization. Its aim is to provide an international network and coordinating focus for action to promote adult education as a power of learning and collective action, to promote all forms of education of adults. It carries out its work through national and regional bodies, and in collaboration with many international and national nongovernmental organizations. It organizes regional documentation and program centers; participates in the preparation of UNESCO conferences, and conducts a wide range of adult education projects through the world.

Publications: Convergence.

Institute for International Education (IIE)

New York, USA

It aims to develop better understanding and create goodwill between the people of the US and the peoples of other countries through educational exchange programs for students, scholars, artists, leaders, and specialists. It assists in developing educational programs to serve the economic and social needs of new and emerging nations. It administers the Fulbright programs.

The World Bank, Education Department

Washington, D.C.

The largest organization in issues of development, including education. Operates in many develop nations and influences governments through loans and grants.

Publications: Numerous, including the World Development Report (annual).

KEY ACADEMIC JOURNALS IN OR RELATED TO COMPARATIVE AND INTERNATIONAL EDUCATION

Comparative Education Review

Quarterly. The official journal of the Comparative and International Education Society. Highly selective publication. Articles cover a wide variety of topics in international and comparative education. Articles are typically based on theory and first-hand data.

Comparative Education

Quarterly. Published by Routledge. It engages with challenging theoretical and methodological issues, and also considers the implications of comparative studies for the formation and implementation of policies—not only in education but in social, national and international development. Thus it welcomes contributions from associated disciplines in the fields of government, management, sociology, and technology and communications.

Compare: A Journal of Comparative Education

Bi-annual. The official journal of the British Comparative and International Education Society. It presents articles concerning educational policies, process and structures, and their relationships with political, social, and educational phenomena in two or more countries, both from the industrialized and developing world.

Prospects

Quarterly. Published by UNESCO (Paris) in English, Spanish, French, Arabic, Russian, and Chinese. An international journal with contributions from experts throughout the world. Each issue stresses a particular topic (adult education, science education, literacy programs, etc.). Articles are both analytical and descriptive.

International Review of Education

Quarterly. Published by UNESCO Institute for Lifelong Learning (Hamburg, Germany). It seeks to provide departments and institutes of education, teacher training institutions, and professional readers all over the world with scholarly information on major educational innovations, research projects, and trends. Articles are analytical rather than descriptive, and often emphasize cross-national comparisons.

Harvard Educational Review

Quarterly. Edited and published by graduate students at Harvard University, Cambridge, MA. Articles deal with practical and theoretical problems of education. Although not internationally-oriented, HER often has articles applicable to the international scene.

International Journal of Educational Development

Six issues per year. Published by Elsevier Educational Research Program. It seeks to foster critical debate about the role education plays in development. It seeks both to develop new theoretical insights and new understanding of the interplay between local, national, regional, and global contexts.

Globalisation, Societies and Education

Quarterly. Published by Routledge. It aims to fill the gap between the study of education and broader social, economic and political forces by analyzing the complexities of globalization. It presents scholarly analysis carried out from a variety of disciplinary perspectives, including sociology, philosophy, politics, geography, history, economics, management and comparative studies as applied to education.

Journal of Studies in International Education

Quarterly. Published by the Association for Studies in International Education. It seeks to broaden the discussion on the role of international cooperation and exchange. Articles place issues at the primary, secondary, higher education, professional exchange, and lifelong learning levels in a global context.

The International Education Journal: Comparative Perspectives

Bi-annual. Published by the Australian and New Zealand Comparative and International Society. It presents theoretical and practice-based articles and prefers cross-disciplinary analysis. It showcases issues related to educational policy, planning, and practice.

Canadian and International Education

Bi-annual. Official journal of the Comparative and International Education Society of Canada. Its articles deal with a wide variety of international education issues, and generally have a more quantitative approach.

Gender and Education

Six times a year. Published by the Gender & Education Association and Routledge. An international forum for discussion of multidisciplinary educational research and ideas that focus on gender as a category of analysis. Education is interpreted in a broad sense to cover both formal and informal aspects. It is particularly interested in the place of gender in relation to other key social differences and seeks to further feminist knowledge, theory, conscious, action, and debate.

World Studies in Education

Bi-annual. Published by James Nicholas Publisher, Australia. Provides overview of significant international and comparative education research affecting educational institutions in the global economy.

Journal of Studies in International Education

Published five times a year. An online, peer-reviewed journal published by NAFSA in collaboration with other members of the Association for Studies in International Education.

Development and Change

Six times a year. Published by the Institute of Social Studies, The Hague. Devoted to a critical analysis and discussion of the complete spectrum of development issues. It includes contributions from all social sciences and intellectual persuasions concerned with development.

Current Issues in Comparative Education (CICE)

Bi-annual. An open-access online journal produced by graduate students in the Comparative Education Program at Teachers College, Columbia University. Emphasizes cutting-edge issues.

Research in Comparative and International Education

Four times a year. An online peer-reviewed publication (but accessible only through subscription) edited by David Phillips at the University of Oxford. Centers on theoretical and methodological issues in comparative and international education research.
